

I met Lacy at the Saugus swap meet in Santa Clarita, CA. It started off nice; I met a sweet girl who was caring toward both me and my family. She told me she was going to college to become a school teacher because she loves children.

I paid for a storage unit that she was behind on in Colorado (just over $300). She promised me she would pay me back every dime.

She was really weird about me coming over to her house and always wanted to meet at my parent's home in Woodland Hills. We went out a couple of times for dinner and hung out off and on at strange times. She was always in a rush.

Lacy started off by telling me that she isn't making enough money to pay her schooling and asked me to pay for it, plus books. She tried to guilt trip me for even questioning it. Her school cost me $2,000 the first semester. I don't remember the exact amount, but summer school cost even more. She called me her boyfriend so I assumed it was my responsibility to help her pay for it.

She called me one day crying about having her computer stolen from the cafeteria at school and she didn't have anything to do her school work on. I took her to Best Buy and spend $2,100 on an Apple notebook. I found out later that she took it back and got cash for it. I even bought her

"Dad" a Nike golf shirt, but I now think it was for the other guy she was also dating/living with while we were supposedly dating.

She told me she was being charged for theft by her last boss and needed money to pay for her lawyer. I paid $7,000 to pay her bail and paid $8,000 to pay her lawyer (all in cash).

Her car broke down and she refused to have any work done on it. So we went to Valencia Honda to lease a car and she talked me into buying a New 2015 Honda Accord for her to drive ($29,000).

Right after that her dad started to get sick. She told me her dad had terminal cancer of the liver and refused treatment (this was Valentine's Day, 2015). I paid $6,400 cash one month for hospice care.

Later, she asked me to buy us tickets to a concert in Las Vegas to see Journey. I paid $1,500 for non-refundable tickets. She cancelled on me the day we were supposed to go and said her dad passed out and fell down the stairs. She texted me a fake paramedic receipt. I know because I showed it to a friend who is a paramedic and said it wasn't what she claimed it was for.

I made several attempts to get the car back, but she avoided me. I knew about her court date and had LA Sheriff's Department help me get it towed to Honda of Woodland Hills. Once I got the door open, I found out that she had been lying to me about her dad having terminal cancer and that she and this other guy lived together. After I gave all her things back to her, she told me she would write up a contract and sign it in her blood if need be that she would pay me back 100% for the money she used me for. After a week I never heard from her again.

Lacy is a lying thief. It took me awhile to come forward because I was embarrassed and I feel like a complete fool for falling for her bullshit. This women needs to see a doctor for what she does to people. I am writing this because I would like to see her punished for what she did to me and others. I truly think she is scamming this other guy because he too is loaded and I feel sorry for him if she is. Over the course of a year and a half she cost me a total of $92,000. I have very few receipts because I am an all cash business. Lacy took full advantage of it.
